WIPES OUT STATE TAXES roads has been manifested among the states since the discovery that the Railread Brotherhood bill would eliminate all payment of state and local taxes. Covernor Davis of Virginia has communicated to the State the Commission's report showing that eventually the State would lose $2,500,000 in taxes each year-about one-fourth the total receipts of the state treasury, from which come the funds for schools, highways, pensions, payment of the public debt and other expenses.

Many states now receive large portions of their total sevenue from taxes on the railroads, New York with $11,-000.000 being the highest; Minnesota, $5,000,000; Texas, $5,000,000; North Dakota, $2,200,000; Colorado, $2,300,-000; Louisiana, $2,000,000; Florida, $1,-500,000; and others in proportion. WHY YOU YAWN

Non-Exercise of the Lungs and Lack of Physical Exertion the Cause

Most people know that after sitting still for any considerable length of time, there is an irresistible desire to get up and stretch the limbs, and there is also, usually, strong desire to yawn with on-

This desire is due to the same cause as sighing, both being in fact the result of oxygen starvation. It is the protest of nature against the disuse of any organ that she has provided for man's

When engaged in deep thinking, or more oxygen induces a sigh, or deep inspiration. In fact, it is nature's pro-

the same cause, but in addition, it is them forcibly, which is, in effect, yawn partly due to lack of physical exertion, ing. which is the direct cause of the desire to stretch the limbs. The sense of relief and exhiliration that follows the yawn and the strotch is due to the impetus given to the circulation.

But it happens just as frequently that fatigue will produce the same result—that a man will yawn when he is thoroughly tired, from which it would seem that there are different kinds of yawning, one resulting from excess of exercise, the other from its lack. This seems somewhat anomalous, but as a matter of fact they are both due to prorisely the same cause. The real reason is to be found in shallow breathing, and most ordinary breathing is superficial. As a consequence, a larger proportion of the air cells in the lungs are seldom, if ever, distended by the air respired, or if they are, they are never completely emptied by exhalation.

In the latter case, they remain more or less distended by the stagnant games and unfortunately the principal gas present under those conditions is that highly poisonous one, earbon dioxide, which is eliminated from the venou blood as it passes through the lungs.

Now as the venous blood is being brought to the lungs by every contracon of the heart and as the lung cells are more or less incapacitated from takag up as much earbon dioxide as they should and this neglect of proper reariration is persisted in, there soon resills an accumulation of this poisonous splatance in the blood and of other of

This soon manifests its dangerous quality by producing a feeling of drow as, even approaching stupor. If the ed vidual has been employed in hard werk, there is also a paisonous substance generated in the museles, known or fatigue poison, and this substance, in a njunction with the earless dispide and manfleient neration, have been kn up to produce a condition of stapor a milling the results from a powerful through failure to expel their contents will eventually produce atrophy of the ells themselves. What disastrous offects may result from the detention of carbon dioxide in the lung cells apart from the blood pollution can only be conjectured; but it is known that a stream of that extremely harmful gas ontinuously directed against a muscle ill paralyze that structure; hence it may be inferred that its constant presence under more or less pressure can have nothing but a disastrous effect up on lung tissue,

There is little doubt that this is the true explanation of that "tired feeling" of which so many people complain, although it does not follow that all cases of chronic weariness are due to that cause, but there can be no doubt that in all cases this factor is always present, but it is equally true that it is a removable factor.

There are some apparently chronically tired people, to whom sleep seems to bring no adequate rost, who wake up in the morning as tired as when they when oppressed by grief, there is an in. went to bed. THE MODERN BRAIDED BUG Almost everybody who has been in a New England farmhouse knows what Hand Braided Rugs are-but how many who are familiar with the type which is made from the family ray bag realize that an industry employing several hundred Braided Rug Makers is in existence right in this State! Yet it is a fact. The Pinkham Assoclation, Inc., an organization of Braided Rug Makers began business in Pertland, Maine seven years ago. Just a few women supplied the demand at first but as the years went by, more and more became Pinkham Associates and took up the work. Of course, the modern braided rug is somewhat different than those which were made from odds and onds for the present day rugs are made entirely of new cloths which are purchased direct from the mills and have never been used. Then agalu, the patterns are all earofully planned by Pinkham Associa ate Designers and the cloths are dyed for the colors required by Pinkhands.

When for us life's work is ever, And the Saviour's voice we hear Calling us to come up higher, Then we'll feel their presence near, All the dear ones gone before us, These on carth we loved the best,

Will be walting first to greet us,

In that land of peace and rest.

When the vell which bides the future From our tear-dimmed, weary eyes, Shall be lifted by the Master As we reach the starry skies, We shall know why all this sorrow, Why the parting and the pain, Why for he the vanished faces, That we long to see again.

When our life work all is finished, And the mists have cleared away, Paes to face with these who love us, We shall stand some happy day, All life's problems solved before us, Heart to keart and hand in hand, With eternal annahine o'er us, Bome sweet day, we'll understand. Edith Wait Colson

CLEAN UP AND KEEP CLEAN

Much More Than Mere Comfort is in-volved in Having Community Free From Dirt.

The greatest effort in the history of cleanliness is on!

For cleanliness has a history. Its influence can be traced down the ages. Those races that were clean were those races that were the masters, The Athenians, with their baths and beautiful homes, conquered the Persians, with their unkempt beards and dirty skins. The Romans, with their squeducts, their barbers, their gardens, beat back the barbarians with their gont skins and greasy fingers. Louis XVI was the most dainty monarch France ever had and one of the mightlest. Elith kept the Panama canal from being built years before it finally was. Bolshevism flourished when the dirty and ignorant gained control in Russia.

Real people, the wise, the leaders in progress, always have fought for cleanliness. At times it has been n sporadic fight, a skirmish. A clean man was handlcapped by a neighbor who let his premises run wild. But co-operation has been brought to play

This year, in the United States alone, 7,000 villages, towns and cities are campaigning for cleanliness and health. They are not doing so for a day or a week, but in a continuous campaign. In a steady pressure.

Tin cans, flies, refuse, dirt, waste paper, unsightly buildings, unpainted surfaces are taboo. The drive is on. It has been estimated that 30,000. 000 men, women and children in the United States are annually interested in and working on clean up and paint up activities. It is an army of magnificent purpose and of immense possibilitles. It is bound to win.

Join the forward movement. Clean up, paint up and keep it up. Make the I enemies, dirt and disease and unsightliness, abdicate and stay out.

Ten Powerful Arguments Put Forward by Those Convinced of Wisdom of the Plan-

Home owning will result in benefit and to the city as a whole, for these, among other, reasons:

1. In the long run the home owner is more prosperous than the renter, and the prosperity of any city depends upon the prosperity of its individual

4. Habits of thrift learned in home buying add to the wealth of the individual and the city. 5. The home owner beautifies the dir; the renter does not; the more beautiful our city is the more people will be attracted to it. 6. Other things being equal, the some owner is a better worker than the renter, and keeps his position after the renter is discharged. 7. The owner of a home has an ever-community. 8. No city of renters can ever suc-

A border of candy tuft or sweet alyseum is very decorative. With such an arrangement, flowers for be parlor and living room table can be obtained until front comes. Many a bouquet of beautiful flowers at practically no expense also can find its way late the room of some sick perton or to a hospital ward. Thrift

Build Bird Homes

Birds add much to the home surfiguidings and are easily made neighbora if nesting places are available Bird houses will allract wrens, bluebirds, martins and nuthatches; and the windbreak, apple orchard, or laws trees make good homes for orloies, obes, robins and thrushes. They will pay for any attention by the deeffection of many injurious insects. Name fruiting shrubs, such as the Juneborry, black haw, sheepberry and therry should be planted in thickets, and alone for the birds, but because they add much to the surremidlage.

A Correr of Old Paris

Paris has its irresistible call for the American soldier on leave. The French capital is thronged with them. For the comfort, convenience and pleasure of these men and also to help in safeguarding them from the perils that lurk in Paris, as in every large city, the Army Y. M. C. A. has quarters at various strategic points throughout the city. This is one of them.

First Aid

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

For two days Nelson Wade had been guest at the one hotel at Leesville. He was so reserved and unobtrusive and so persistent in not going out except after dark that the boniface at the hostelry was divided between the surmises as to his being a detective or n bank burglar. Not that poor Wade resembled either of the fik indicated, for a more forlorn individual it would have been bard to find.

Nelson and come from Dover, 50 miles distant, and his forlornness harked back directly to that quiet little town. There he had lived from boyhood, there he had met and loved pretty, vivacious Nettle Mercer and had become engaged to her. Now that delightful partnership was rudely sundered, and Nelson deemed himself the most wretched of mankind. .

A silly quarrel had led to the desolation that now filled his aching heart. Fiery jealous and resentful, Nettle had called her recreant lover to time because he had gone with a girl visiting his sister in search of early violets on Honeysuckle hill.

"You made sure not to bring me any of the spring beauties!" she told him, and before Nelson could explain to Nettie that the girl was to be married in a month and that he only showed her the most ordinary courtesy as a guest of his sister and that their errand had been bootless, not one violet having been garnered, Nettle drew the engagement ring from her finger, threw it at his feet and flounced from Nelson did not pick up the circlet, nor did he stay to plead forgiveness, for he had done no wrong. Nor did he lower his dignity by glossing over action on the part of Nettle. He went to the city for a week, leaving her to think over her irrational jealousy and temper. When he came back his confidence in her "cooling down" was considerably abashed.

"Nettle has gone to spend two months with our relatives, the Doanes, at Leesville," her sister explained to him. "There is a gentleman at Leesville, too, she thinks a great deal of." The gentleman in question was a married cousin of Nettle, but her maneuvering sister, older and wiser, minded not invention and a trifling decelt to place the lovers on the road to making up and behaving themselves. Nelson found himself sunk into utter despondency at the unexpected turn affairs had taken.

"Yes," he sollloquized, "I'll go to Leesville. I'll manage to come across Nettle. I'll give her the violets and tell her that, like them, my heart is withering and-and I'll do it on my knees, if necessary, for I cannot live

And thus it was that Nelson had gone to Leesville, but to find his nightly rambles of no avail. He had located the home of the Doanes, and had hung ! around it two whole evenings without catching a glimpse of Nettle. The third evening he learned from an overheard conversation of two of the Donne girls in the garden that Nettle was sick in bed with a bad cold and had been confined to her room ever since her arrival.

Just at dusk two evenings later, trailing past the high rear feace of the Donne grounds, the heart of the longing lover thrilled mightly as he noted near a little rustic bower a shawled figure passing to and fro. It was the first outdoor exercise the invalid Nettie had taken. She was alone, What was a mere fence, high mountains, castles, any obstacle, to the impetuous penitent!

Nelson scaled the high palings, got over the top. There was a creak, a crack, a crash, and he landed on the other side in the garden, prone and senseless. A servant coming from the house uttered a sharp scream as she noted the castastrophe.

"Ob, Miss Mercer!" she cried out: "someone is hurt. Quick! quick!" and Nettie came hurrying to the spot. It was just light enough to make out the features of the prostrate lavader. Then Nettle echoed the distraction of the maid.

"Oh, he may be killed!" wailed the frantic Nettle. "Hasten to Mrs. Donne and telephone for a doctor," and then as the servant fied toward the boune Nettle threw herself upon the ground beside her unconscious lover, lifted his bead into her lap and awayed and croconed dismaily: "It he should die-and all my fault!" she waited. "Ob, Nelson! my poor, wronged darling!" Nelson Wade opened his eyes. The first thing he noted was the glesm of the edgagement ring on Nettle's finger. She had leaned over to kiss him on the cheek. He smiled. He drew from his pocket the faded violets.

"I came for forgiveness," he began, "It was all my fault?" she whim-

"Now, then, a cold bandage and the ramphor," sounded the voice of Mrs. Donne, her hands filled with bandages and bottles. "First aid notil the doc

But "first ald" had been already administered effectively, and Nelson arishe with a great contented grin on his face, which Nettle emphasized with a smile ravishingly radiant and full of couleatment.
